My name is [REDACTED] Im 34 years old and I reside at [REDACTED] I was asked to write and tell you what kind of an impact the new policy changes have had on my life. While I could tell you about the numerous ways these changes have made my life difficult, instead I'll tell you about the way it hurt me the most.

Two years ago my father died. My father was my best friend and I took his passing really hard. After he past my sister offered to send me a lot of my fathers personal photos. Photos from when he was a boy all the way up until his passing. Because I took his passing so hard I wasn't ready for her to send those photos. I asked her to hold them for me until I was ready.

Im doing a life sentence and now with the new policies I'll never be able to recieve these photos of my father. Sure, I could recieve a copy of them on regular copy paper, and I will. However, these flimsy pieces of paper will never hold the same sentiment. That is by far the way these new policy changes have hurt me the most
